

The Many Greens That I See

The many greens that I see, are something to behold.

It is soothing to me, as my eyes glide across nature's scene.

The rain jumps from leaf to vine in a very musical way.

All the time keeping a rhythm, as it plays.

The wind turns the leaves inside out, in a slow magical sway.

All the time keeping pace as mother nature passes the day.

The shades of greens are every where, so many, light and bold.

To be absorbed and enjoyed, this loving soothing scene.

Gives off an air of nature and a smell of something clean.

I truly enjoy this picture of patchwork greens.

The simple things in life, can be seen.

Take a minute to behold Mother Nature's fields.

Find the beauty in what is natural that man hasn't ruined.

You will feel the magic and find the tune.

The song of Mother Nature's making,

That makes the greens' worth contemplating.
