

The Dark Evil Pit

The mind can be a very dark place,
Where evil thoughts can pester,
And become reality;
If left untamed, they fester.

The separation between good and evil,
Can be measured on how you control these thoughts,
That linger in the under-world of the mind,
Where no one should want to walk.

If you linger too long,
In the evil pit of the mind,
The difference between reality and not,
Becomes only a matter of time.

Everyone has these thoughts,
They may not cherish or want,
But they creep in to your everyday mind,
Get away, or you'll get caught!

Everyone has the dark evil pit,
That lures them into its snare.
Pick up your feet and exit this place,
Before you find you're there.