

The Republican Party

Has the Republican party met its Waterloo?

Where does their loyalty lie?

Surely not to the many who have supported them for years,

Can they not hear our cries?

After eight long years of agonizing pain,

The party has failed at every turn.

You gained control of both houses,

And still failed to play the game!

We have a hard time digesting the words out of your mouth,

They mean nothing to us, can't you see?

You've been too comfortable in your ivory towers,

It's time for a major change!

You've needed our vote, and we gave it.

But your failures have made it plain,

It's up to you now, to listen to us,

Get out of your towers, we've had enough!

But broken promises is all we've seen.

We know everything cannot be free.

We are tired of being lead around by the nose,

It's time for the party to come clean.
