

Big Business

Businesses today don't care about the buyer.

They make promises and sell stuff,

Made with cheap labor, from foreign lands.

Anything goes, as long as they get enough.

They get our money and guarantee,

They'll back their product,

That is until you read the small print,

It's really just a big joke, you see.

Laws are written to protect the consumer,

But if you look carefully, you might see,

The words are written,

With no guarantee.

Government protects big business not us.

After all it is where they get their money.

Donations to run for office,

Do you really think, to help us?

What lawyer takes small cases under five grand?

To us it is a heavy load,

But they wouldn't make money on us.

To my family and me, it's not little stuff.

You beat a man down over and over,
And you might get away with it for a time.
Keep beating people down, and they will talk,
Find each other and begin that walk.

Don't think your too big to fall.
Remember the French Revolution.
It was not the establishment in charge,
It was not the King that made the last call.

You could lose everything because of your greed,
Do you think you can keep us in line by giving us Reality TV,
And by showing us all you have and can do?
You will not like what will become of you!
